

Searching the Australian War Memorial records

Please note: Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people should be aware that the memorial and research sites listed in this PDF may contain or link to images, voices or names of deceased persons in photographs, film, audio recordings or printed material. Some material on the Australian War Memorial contains terms that reflect authors' views, or those of the period in which the item was written or recorded but may not be considered appropriate today. While the information may not reflect current understanding, it is provided in an historical context.

The range of records held by the Memorial include:

- First World War nominal and embarkation rolls.
- Roll of Honour
- Information about honours and awards
- Red Cross and prisoner-of-war records
- Unit war diaries and histories
- Military orders
- Various military handbooks and instructions.

A Nominal Roll is a list of names, here it refers to a list of veterans who served in a particular conflict. It can also provide a 'snapshot' of each individual veteran's military service by displaying a range of information that has been gathered from documents in their military service record. Nominal rolls for conflicts other than World War I can be found on the Department of Veteran's Affairs.

An embarkation roll gives dates and shipping details for persons embarking on a sea journey.

How to search

When searching for details about a particular person in the collection at the Australian War Memorial you will need to know a little about them. From the home page of the memorial click on "People" which will open to a search box.

1. Enter "Frederick, J H" (be aware that you may need to try different spelling of the name).

Search for a person

If you are looking for a family member, friend or relative who served, this will guide you to the relevant areas of our website that contain information.

Sometimes you will find that there is more than one person with the same name and initials. Using a filter allows you to remove results from a search that are not relevant, or to only include those that will be relevant. You can choose to include only those people from a specific conflict, for example the First World War or the Boer War.
